Issue 327 24 March 2014

Tour de Hackney

The Tour de France will pass through Hackney this summer; Bradley Wiggins and Mark Cavendish in the 2012 Tour de France (above)

TOP names in the world of cycling are set to race through Hackney this summer as the Tour de France comes to London. On 7 July cyclists will ride through Ruckholt Road, East Way and Waterden Road in Hackney Wick. They will then whizz through Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, before heading to Central London.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: "It's fantastic that such a prestigious event is coming to East London, and only right that it passes through Hackney, the capital's number one borough for cycling." See page 5 for more info.

MINIMUM WAGE OP

THE Council has joined forces with Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (HMRC) in a crackdown on businesses that don't pay the national minimum wage.

Some 40 Hackney businesses have been visited by HMRC, with a quarter caught not paying the minimum wage. Individuals and businesses under-declaring earnings, or not meeting legal tax responsibilities were identified.

Twenty one takeaways were visited in a joint operation on 19 March. Four businesses were failing to pay five workers the minimum wage. In addition, none were VAT registered, and officers found income tax irregularities, including one business that had never declared income tax, despite trading for over 10 years. Over half of the businesses had no records of sales or takings.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "Through joint operations like this we are catching those employers continuing to flout the law by not paying their employees at least the national minimum wage. The Council also remains committed to making Hackney a fair pay borough, where nobody is expected to do a hard day's work for less than they can live on."

Council officers also recorded a total of 241 environmental health check list failures including no formal food hygiene training; or pest control arrangements; not displaying a premises licence; and operating after 11pm. Follow up visits by Council staff are planned to ensure these issues have been resolved.

During an earlier operation on 11 March, teams visited 19 phone shops. Officers from HMRC identified six premises failing to pay eight workers the national minimum wage. In addition, they discovered nine VAT irregularities, four in relation to income tax self assessment and 13 for pay as you earn. One business had no toilets for staff, two had no water provision, and six had electrical safety issues.

Home Office Immigration Enforcement teams also made 17 arrests over the two days.

Minimum wage enforcement is planned in upcoming months.

Hackney Today is published by the London Borough of Hackney. It has a print run of 108,000 copies and is delivered free to every home and business in the borough. The Council uses it to communicate public service information to residents. It is published fortnightly in order to carry statutory advertising, such as planning and traffic notices, which is cheaper for the taxpayer than using another local paper. The law does not allow for statutory notices to be published solely online or in a less frequent publication.

The paper's official, door-to-door delivery is 90,679 copies per issue, according to Audit Bureau of Circulations (ABC)

There is currently concern about the growing number of betting shops in Hackney's high streets

Betting shop changes

THIS month's Budget announcement of a consultation on reforming the planning system could boost a campaign to limit the number of betting shops in the borough.

The Council is calling for local authorities to be given more control over when and where bookies can open, with 65 operating in Hackney, including eight in one street alone.

It is hoped that the Government consultation could lead to a change in planning laws that would give residents and councillors more say over future applications to open betting shops. The potential impact a new betting shop may have on an area would become a factor on whether or not it gets approval.

There is concern about the number of betting shops in high streets across the country, and frustration felt by local authorities and residents alike that prevailing guidance allows betting shops to open in a wide range of premises without planning permission.

Under existing guidelines betting shops are classed as A2 – financial and professional services – meaning they can open without planning permission in premises which previously housed a similar venture, like a bank or an estate agent.

Planning rules also state an A2 class business can open without permission in existing A3, A4 and A5 premises, expanding the field to include pubs, restaurants, cafes and hot food takeaways.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: “If this consultation opens the door for councils to be given more control over betting shops then that’s good news. However, if the Budget’s general tone of planning liberalisation seeks to make it even easier for betting shops to open this would be something we will vehemently oppose.”

“For too many years councils have been left powerless to stop betting shops blighting their high streets, much to the frustration of our residents.

“They’re sapping the vibrancy and variety from our high streets, and squeeze out potential local enterprises which could use the premises for something positive and constructive.”

Earlier this year Hackney, with the support of councils across London and a further 35 authorities outside the capital, submitted a proposal to give betting shops their own classification, as with nightclubs and casinos. An online petition was launched encouraging the public to show their support. At the time Hackney Today went to press, it had nearly 1,000 signatures.

Jermain Jackman got through to the final live shows on BBC One's 'The Voice' on 16 March; with his mentor will.i.am (right)

Hitting the right notes

HACKNEY'S singing sensation Jermain Jackman has made it through to the finals of BBC One's 'The Voice'.

The 19-year-old beat off stiff competition to be selected for the final three in will.i.am's team. Jermain said on the night: "I am going to pull out all the stops because this is no joke now. It's my moment to shine."

The live show on 16

March saw Jermain sing a rendition of 'A House Is Not A Home' by Luther Vandross, which will.i.am admitted was his mother's favourite song.

Judges Tom Jones and Kylie Minogue were equally impressed by Jermain.

Kylie had tears in her eyes during his performance and Tom said: "He had this tremendous range." The Kaiser Chiefs' Ricky Wilson also admitted that Jermain was a favourite of his.

After his performance, all four judges gave Jermain a standing ovation.

He then was picked to go through to the final live shows, when the public will choose the overall winner. The other two contestants to be selected for 'Team Will' were Iesher Haughton, who sang Whitney Houston's 'Try It On My Own' and Sophie May, who astonished the judges with a version of 'Moon River'.

Jermain said of the experience: "I'm just trying to hold back the tears."

"I am going to pull out all the stops because this is no joke – it's my moment to shine"

News in brief

Lee Valley VeloPark opens

A TRIATHLON club based in Hackney will hold the first race at Lee Valley VeloPark, in Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, when it officially opens on 31 March.

The launch event, hosted by Capital Tri, is the first in a series of duathlons, which combine running and cycling. Further competitive races will be held every other Monday, from 7pm to 9pm, and all abilities are welcome. Participants will have the choice of two distances, the SuperSprint: a one-mile run, five-mile cycle, and another one-mile run; or Sprint: A two-mile run, 10-mile cycle, followed by a two-mile run.

£10k available for local artists

A NEWLY created £10,000 prize to support local emerging artists is open to Hackney residents. The East London Painting Prize (ELPP) also gives the winner the chance to showcase their work at a solo show in the Nunnery Gallery, Bow.

The prize honours the life and work of painter and philanthropist Jack Goldhill, who was one of the chief figures in the post Second World War reconstruction of the East End.

Artists will show their work to a judging panel including painter Varda Caivano; senior curator at the Zabudowicz Collection, Maitreyi Maheshwari; independent art advisor, Sarah Elson; and art editor and curator Matt Price.

The prize has been established by charity The Legacy List with the Goldhill Family, in association with Bow Arts. For more information on how to apply, visit: www.bowarts.org/elpp

The Duchess of Cornwall visits City Academy pupils for literacy event

THE Duchess of Cornwall visited City Academy, E9, to learn more about efforts to help improve young people's literacy skills.

Camilla was joined by Nick Hewer, advisor to Lord Sugar on hit BBC show 'The Apprentice', at an event to celebrate the work of the National Literacy Trust.

The charity's Words for Work programme is designed to tackle youth unemployment by increasing literacy among young people from disadvantaged backgrounds.

The Duchess, who is patron of the Trust, saw pupils showcase interview techniques, communication skills and business knowledge on 20 March.

Words for Work was created after concerns raised by businesses about the communication skills and work readiness of young people. A recent Literacy Trust survey found that almost a third of businesses are dissatisfied with the literacy skills of school and college leavers.

Volunteers from event sponsors KPMG were brought into the academy to work with pupils to raise their confidence and aspirations, while helping them with the literacy skills they need to get a job.

Katie Blythe, 14, said: "Before the project, I didn't like to speak in front of people and I wasn't always confident to share my ideas. Now I feel much more able to speak out. I also feel like I know more about what to expect when I leave school and that I will find it easier to get a job."

Tour de France hits Hackney

THE world's top cyclists will whizz their way through the streets of Hackney this summer as the Tour de France comes to London.

The first three stages – known as the Grand Depart – of the prestigious race will take place in the UK.

The world's largest annual cycling event will hit the capital on Monday, 7 July, when it passes through Ruckholt Road, East Way and Waterden Road in Hackney Wick. The riders will then race through Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, before heading to Central London for a final sprint up to The Mall.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: "It's fantastic that such a prestigious event is coming to East London, and only right that it passes through Hackney, the capital's number one borough for cycling. Seeing cycling's superstars race through our streets will hopefully inspire even more people to get on their bikes and lead more active lifestyles."

"Thousands of spectators are expected to descend on the borough, potentially providing a great boost for many local businesses, while the Hackney Wick area of the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park will take centre stage in front of millions of TV viewers across the world.”

“ Seeing cycling's superstars race through our streets will hopefully inspire even more people to get on their bikes ”

He added the Council has been working with businesses and other organisations, including Transport for London, to minimise disruption.

The roads which make up the route are expected to be closed for much of the day. There will be significant congestion in surrounding areas and parking restrictions may apply in some places.

Yorkshire will host the first two stages of the 101st tour, which starts in Leeds on 5 July and finishes in Sheffield on 6 July.

Stage three covers 159 kilometres and passes through Cambridgeshire, Essex, North and East London (taking in Redbridge, Waltham Forest, Hackney, and Newham) and finishes in Westminster where the winner gets to don the yellow jersey, prior to the start of the French stages.

It is the first time the tour has returned to UK shores since 2007. In anticipation of the race, the 2014 Tour de France Grand Depart trophy made an appearance at Hackney Museum on 18 March. Children from neighbouring schools gathered to view it, including Polly Hathaway, 10, Naomi James, 11, and Alice Willett, 10, all from Queensbridge Primary School (pictured above centre). Polly said: "I am really excited. I like to cycle in the park. We did road training with our school, which was really fun."

Alice added: "It's very exciting, I like to cycle, and my mum comes from France."

Awarding Hackney's businesses

S EVEN Hackney companies have been honoured at this year's Mayor of Hackney's Business Awards.

With over 9,000 businesses – from market traders to international creative design and manufacturing agencies – Hackney is home to a vast array of entrepreneurial talent.

The awards, which took place on 20 March at BL_NK in Shoreditch, were judged by a panel of business people.

The People's Choice award, voted for by the public, attracted nearly 1,600 votes. 90 Main Yard, a multi-purpose creative workspace, restaurant and innovation centre in Hackney Wick, won the coveted title by 600 votes.

Best Hackney Entrepreneur was won by Victoria Park Children's Bookshop. Proprietor Jo de Guia said: "We pride ourselves in being a business embedded in the local community."

Winner of the Best Hackney Creative Business was Pearson Lloyd, a Shoreditch-based industrial design and innovation company. The Best Sustainable Business was judged to be mental health arts charity, Core Arts, based in Homerton.

“These awards represent the vast diversity of businesses in the borough”

The award for the Best Business Contribution went to digital creative agency, Poke, in Shoreditch.

Tom Hostler said: "We are very proud of the Tech City apprentices we have through Hackney Community College. They give us a youthful perspective and a genuine competitive advantage."

Best Hackney Business went to Optimity, a wireless internet network providers in Shoreditch.

And the Judges' Special Commendation went to Cave of Plunder, a new milkshake parlour, cafe and gift shop, near Clapton Pond.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "These awards represent the vast diversity of businesses in the borough. From internationally renowned creative and design agencies to art galleries; from child care businesses to firms arranging holidays for disabled people; from stunning new restaurants to community minded cafes; and of course the tech sector from new apps to multi-national digital enterprises. Hackney has it all."

The Mayor went on to thank the judging panel: Iqbal Waheeb OBE, Kanya King MBE, Caren Downie and Eric van der Kleij.

East End snapper

Hackney photographer Chris Dorley-Brown has been focusing his lens on the area since 1979

PHOTOGRAPHER Chris Dorley-Brown has carved a career out of capturing the changes in Hackney over the past 35 years.

He says: "I didn't grow up in London so photographing it is very interesting to me. My parents were both from the East End, my great grandfather was a Hackney councillor, he helped build many of the libraries. I found that out at Hackney Archives."

Originally from the Isle of Wight, Chris' first commission was to take pictures of the German Hospital in Dalston in “Photography is one of the only ways you can bring the past to life, so you notice things you wouldn't normally”

1988 (pictured above, top). Many of the images were used in Chris' later work – 'Continuum' – a before and after set of photographs. In these, he places two images side-by-side, taken in different years, but under the same lighting and weather conditions. He stands at the same vantage point so the viewer's eye is focused on the differences.

'Continuum' was not a conceptual idea. After a stint living away from London and not taking photos, Chris was at a loss what to do creatively. He began shooting the same images and saw a pattern forming.

He explains: "They're like descriptions of some civic prevarication. Photography is one of the only ways you can bring the past to life, so you notice things you wouldn't normally.

"You wouldn't necessarily look at the boring details; the fabric and textures of things. But if you photograph them and compare the differences, you notice everything. They may have put new pavements down, or the road's been resurfaced, or the tower block has been re-clad. Or perhaps there are different signs up, or nothing is in the picture that was there 10 years ago. It's all changed, but exponentially. The skin has changed."

"You can't talk about the East End without talking about where we all come from, in my case it's Ireland and Huguenot. But my parents never wanted to talk about it. They were uninterested in their own history, it was an irrelevance to them because they lived through the war.

"So it cemented my interest, I stayed here, I photographed it. I've lived outside, but I've always come back."

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

Shakespeare's Globe trotter

CLAPTON resident and artistic director of Shakespeare's Globe, Dominic Dromgoole, loves the strong sense of community, history and good food in Hackney.

Originally from Somerset, Dominic moved to the borough in 2009 with his family. He says: "I started enjoying all these different textures and all of these different histories and narratives that pile on top of each other in East London."

"I walk in to work, it's such a nice walk from Clapton Pond... to London Bridge. It's like 30 different Londons and 30 different histories all in one walk – it's really enjoyable and consistently surprising."

Dominic studied English and Classics at St Catharine's College, Cambridge, before running his own theatre company which toured the country.

His passion for theatre led him to become artistic director of the Bush Theatre, the Oxford Stage Company and now Shakespeare's Globe.

In fact, Dominic is currently in rehearsals for the Globe's most ambitious production yet: the Globe to Globe Hamlet tour, which aims to take Shakespeare's most famous work to every country in the world, including North Korea.

He explains: "The two year tour starts on 23 April – Shakespeare's birthday. There will be hairy moments, but it will be hugely joyous as well."

But it's not just his interest in theatre that keeps Dominic on his toes, last year he opened Maeve's Kitchen on Lower Clapton Road, in memory of novelist Maeve Binchy, a close friend. After she passed away in 2012, Dominic used money she bequeathed to him to open the restaurant.

He says: "The idea was to keep it very simple and not make it pretentious or fine dining. The place is lovely, full of joy."

Shoreditch-based theatre company Punchdrunk designed the interior of the restaurant, which has lured people through its doors with cosy, amber walls, wooden furniture and candles.

The restaurant has been a success, with its simple menus consisting of tea and cake during the day, and one-pot dishes in the evening, such as Scottish fish stew – cullen skink – and chicken and sausage hotpot.

The food is all locally sourced using bread from E5 Bakehouse; beer from Hackney Wick's Crate Brewery and Five Points Brewing Company; and coffee from Broadway Market-based Climpson and Sons.

Dominic thinks the green spaces in Hackney and the surrounding areas differentiate it from other areas of London.

He says: "The sheer expanse of the Marshes and the great swathe of green – all the way up through Epping Forest and out into the countryside – is very liberating for the imagination. It gives you a lot of energy, you don't feel like you're being locked in a grid of streets you can never escape from."

"I think people think of East London as more built up and claustrophobic than it in fact is. It's actually quite free. I love the Marshes and the canal, and it was a really nice moment to move to Clapton when we came because there was this huge sense of change in the air with investment coming in for the Olympics."

"There were new communities coming and new creative impulses being set free. So, it was a real pleasure to be part of that."

"I enjoy all these different textures,... histories and narratives that pile on top of each other in East London"

Giving your garden a spring clean?

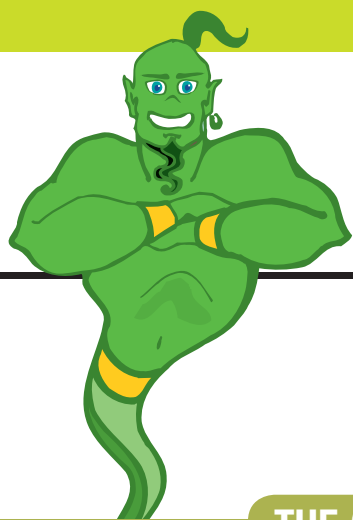

Put grass, weeds and cuttings in your brown bin or bag and leave the rest to us.

Garden waste is collected every fortnight and turned into compost which is used in our allotments, parks and gardens to help Hackney grow greener.

To see if your property has a garden waste collection, check your collection days or order a bin or reusable bag, visit www.hackney.gov.uk/recycling

THE GREEN GENIE

All your green questions answered

Q: This morning I noticed some people walking around with clipboards looking at people's bins. Were they from the Council? What were they doing?

A: For three weeks the Council is counting the number of recycling bags outside properties and checking to see if food waste bins are being used.

Across Hackney, the recycling rate is about 25 per cent. Some people recycle a lot more than that, but some do not recycle at all. The Council wants to know what the situation is like across the borough to help people recycle more in the areas where levels are low.

The data will not be shared with anyone else, but will help the Council target future communications to improve recycling performance. The monitoring is being done by Keep Britain Tidy, on behalf of the Council.

It costs the Council twice as much to dispose of a bag of general rubbish as it does a bag of recycling. The cost of disposal increases each year, but the amount of money available to the Council goes down. It is important that everyone throws away less rubbish and recycles more so the Council can continue to provide important services.

Bike Around The Borough is organised by the Council to encourage young people to cycle to school

Hackney is transport borough of the year

HACKNEY has picked up a top award for its sustainable transport and cycling initiatives.

Hackney won the prestigious Transport Borough of the Year title at the London Transport Awards on 6 March.

Judges said the borough had built on its reputation for innovation in cycling with further advances in bike parking and monitoring progress through cycle counters and apps.

They added: "The range and breadth of the sustainable transport work undertaken in recent years

"The Council have undoubtedly grasped the opportunity to work collaboratively with public health professionals"

The Hackney team pick up the Transport Borough of the Year award indicates that there is a lot more to Hackney than simply cycling. And in addition to this the Council has undoubtedly grasped the opportunity to work collaboratively with public health professionals and is increasingly working with them in relation to Smarter Travel, Play Streets, road safety and air quality initiatives."

Figures from the 2011 Census revealed last year that Hackney has the highest proportion of people commuting by bike of any London borough, with more people riding to work than going by car.

The Council offers free cycle training courses for people who live, work or study in Hackney.

One hundred secure cycle lockers installed on 21 estates

THE Council has installed 100 cycle lockers on 21 Hackney estates, after residents asked for more secure parking for their bikes.

These add to the 310 lockers already installed around the borough. They are a perfect way to store bikes and protect them from opportunist thieves, bad weather and accidental damage. The lockers are conveniently located in well-lit areas keeping corridors and hallways clear of obstacles.

Cara Phillips, who lives on Milton Gardens Estate, said: "I took up cycling after I saw the opportunity to hire a locker on my estate. For a small annual fee I received a secure unit to park my bicycle which put my mind at ease and kept my house clean."

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, added: "People who live on estates tell us that they want to cycle but do not have the space in their homes to store bikes, or have to carry their bikes up steps. These lockers will make it easier for more people to switch to cycling."

To request a cycle locker on your estate, e-mail: movegreener@hackney.gov.uk with your name, address, phone number and e-mail address.

The lockers are limited to two per household.

Thierry Noir: A Retrospective

From 4 April, Howard Griffin Gallery, 189 Shoreditch High Street, E1 6HU

THE man famed for being the first person to have painted the Berlin Wall is set to exhibit his work in the Howard Griffin Gallery, Shoreditch, next month. Thierry Noir lived next to the Berlin Wall before he had the idea of painting it. He said: "I came from France in 1982 without any idea of what I wanted to do. I didn't come to paint the wall, it just happened that way two years later."

A reconstruction of the Berlin Wall will be built in the gallery, alongside videos including the Wim Wenders film, 'Wings Of Desire'.

The film captured many of Thierry's images on the Wall, which have since been sold off to collectors in various parts of the world.

Thierry has been painting parts of Shoreditch in the run up to his solo exhibition, which begins on 4 April. Thierry's paintings can be seen on the side of Village Underground, the Strongroom bar and in front of Cargo on Rivington Street. Last September, he worked with street artist John Dolan on his first solo exhibition at Howard Griffin Gallery, a collaboration with a number of artists. The work sold out on the first night.

Top children's authors with Queensbridge Primary school pupils to launch education initiative Pop Up

Pop-up primary projects

SOME of the UK's top children's authors teamed up with headteachers in the borough to launch a new reading project.

Pop Up Hackney is an education initiative that brings storytelling to life through immersive literature and arts events.

The reading programme included 170 workshops across 11 Hackney schools, reaching up to 5,000 school children. Over 80 authors – including Dame Babette Cole; Rastamouse creator Michael Da

“Every year Pop Up creates a buzz of excitement across the whole school”

Souza; and young adult novelist Melvin Burgess – have signed up to the programme, alongside illustrators Chloe Inkpen, Jackie Morris and Guy Parker-Rees.

Now in its third year, Pop Up Projects CIC has delivered numerous workshops and events connecting children, family and schools with contemporary books and diverse authors.

Last year, 90 per cent of teachers agreed that the initiative inspired, influenced or challenged their teaching practice.

Debi Moncur, deputy headteacher at Millfields Primary School, said: “The academic year would never be the same without Pop Up. Every year it creates a buzz of excitement across the whole school. Pupils tell us it's the favourite part of their learning.”

Schools taking part in the programme this year, which ran from 10 to 14 March, included Brook, Kingsmead, Millfields, Morningside, Nightingale, Northwold, Orchard and Southwold primaries, as well as Clapton Girls' and Our Lady's secondaries.

Pop Up in Hackney is commissioned by Linklaters law firm, as part of its Learn for Work initiative.

Turner Prize winner visits The Urswick School

TURNER Prize winning sculptor Richard Deacon visited The Urswick School for an A-Level art conference and to speak to pupils about his work.

The 10 March event, facilitated by the Council, was attended by students from Haggerston and Stoke Newington schools and The Petchey, Bridge and Skinners' academies.

Richard spoke to the students about his career and his desire to become a sculptor from an early age. Following the talk the head of art, Patrick Sanders, presented Richard with a screen print designed by Year 13 student Micky Herbert, 18, (pictured right).

Richard's sculptures are currently on display at Tate Britain, in an exhibition showcasing over four decades of his career.

Student Montel Williams, 18, said: “As we walked around the Tate last week we wondered how he had created such huge, twisted sculptures from wood and steel.

“Being able to meet

Richard and to ask him questions has been a truly inspirational experience.”

SEN update

MAJOR national changes to the way children with special education needs (SEN) are supported, are due to come into force on 1 September. To help families prepare, Hackney Today will feature information about services every month.

New SEN support for families

A NEW way of assessing and deciding the support that children with special educational needs and disabilities receive is to be introduced this year. Education, Health and Care (EHC) plans, will replace the current system of 'statements'. Instead of focusing exclusively on children's educational attainment, the plans will also consider input from health and social care services. It will mean attending just one meeting and assessment, led by the young person, their family and an EHC plan coordinator. The coordinator's job is to ensure representatives from the appropriate departments – such as health and social care – are there too. EHC plans are expected to be rolled out by the Government from September, with statements phased out by 2017. The aim is to create a single document, which sets out the support in place to help the young person meet their goals. Parents and children will play a key role in shaping this, and the plans will be reviewed every year.

Organisations in Hackney have already started working together to ensure the smooth roll-out of the changes, and to make sure that parents are kept informed.

In the coming months, Hackney Learning Trust will be working with schools and parent groups to explain the changes and answer any questions.

A national consultation is now underway. Anyone who wants to find out more, or have their say, can visit:

www.learningtrust.co.uk/consultations

Next HiP meeting on 2 April

HACKNEY Independent Forum for Parents/Carers of Children with Disabilities (HiP) will hold its next meeting at Young Hackney Forest Road on 2 April, from 10am to 2pm. It is an opportunity to find out more about how national SEN policy is changing, including EHC plans, proposed new school-based support, services for children and young people and personal budgets. Lunch will be provided, along with a creche for children under three (book before 31 March).

Projects funded through Hackney Youth Opportunity Fund include residential (above), music workshops, and boxing at the Youth Create event

News in brief

Charity wins funding to help tackle youth unemployment

A CHARITY that helps people get work has been awarded £64,000 to provide a two-year education and work skills programme for disadvantaged young people aged 16 to 25-years-old.

ELATT, based in Dalston, was awarded the funding by the St James's Palace Foundation to support young people to gain qualifications in and knowledge of music production, film-making, web design, web development and IT systems through its StarTEC Youth Project.

This provides individually tailored training to meet the specific needs of each student, including one-to-one mentoring.

Anthony Harmer, ELATT Chief Executive, said: "We believe all young people have talents and can make a positive contribution to our society and the economy. With the funds from St James's Palace Foundation we will be able to give them the relevant skills, support and experience to do this."

For more info, visit: www.elatt.org.uk

Paid internships in the City

YOUNG people from Hackney are being invited to sign up for paid internships in the City this summer.

The City Business Traineeships (CBT) programme offers placements at top firms in the Square Mile to bright students, aged 18 to 19, who attend state school.

Funded by the City of London Corporation, and delivered by The Brokerage Citylink, the programme offers students the chance to network and gain vital career experience whilst earning.

Mark Boleat, Policy Chairman at the City of London Corporation, says: "This is an opportunity for students to see for themselves what working in the City is like, and to be paid in the process."

The deadline for students to apply is 1 April. For more info, visit: www.thebrokerage.org.uk/city-business-traineeship

Funds for young people

AMBITIOUS young people who want to make a difference in Hackney are being given the chance to bid for a share of this year's £200,000 Youth Opportunity Fund.

The Council is giving eight to 19-year-olds the chance to bid for the cash to provide opportunities for other young people in the borough.

Last year, the fund supported nearly 50 projects, involving over 2,000 young people. These included Hackney Empire Youth Forum's 'Epicentre' club night; residentials to Slovenia, Gambia and

"I loved the whole process, from writing the YOF application to seeing it all come together at the end"

Spain; and arts projects such as the Mouth that Roars film, 'Chicken Shop', which premiered at the British Film Institute.

In December, a group of young people used funding to put on an event to celebrate 25 years of Hackney Quest. One of the organisers, Shadai Eshun, 16, said: "I loved the whole process, from writing the application to seeing it all come together at the end."

"It helped me build confidence, organisation and leadership skills."

Groups are able to apply for up to £5,000 of funding. It is open to groups of three or more young people who live, work or study in Hackney. All applications are assessed by a panel of young people, who will have the final decision over which projects receive funding.

Cllr Rita Krishna,

Cabinet Member for Children's Services and Education, said: "Hackney is full of ambitious young people, and this is just one of the opportunities for them to have their say about how we spend some of the Young Hackney budget."

The deadline for round one applications – for activities taking place over the summer and early autumn – is 30 April. The deadline for round two is 23 September.

Young people in Hackney Rep-Present the community with new ideas

YOUNG people have been thinking about ways to improve the quality of life in Hackney and presenting their ideas to civic leaders.

Six schools across the borough are taking part in the Community-Apprentice competition, organised by social action charity Envision.

The project requires young people to research problems in an area and come up with ways to tackle them.

A key aim for the Rep-Present challenge, supported by the Paul Hamlyn Foundation, is to enable young people to develop their confidence and communication skills.

The teams outline the issue they have chosen to address and explain why they feel it is important to the community, before elaborating on their goals and how they intended to achieve them.

The young people then receive feedback on their proposals from Council leaders.

Cllr Sophie Linden, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: "I'm impressed by the young people and the confidence they have in talking about issues that matter to them."

The schools involved are Cardinal Pole; Our Lady's; Clapton Girls' Academy; Petchey Academy; Stoke Newington; and BSix Sixth Form College. Topics discussed include food waste, homelessness, gang crime and cycle safety.

School food co-op

CHILDREN at St Dominic's Catholic Primary School are being helped to reach their five-a-day target after the launch of a new weekly fruit and vegetable stall in the school's playground.

The stall pops up at 3pm every Thursday, so parents can buy potatoes, plantains and pineapples at the same time as collecting their children from school.

Alison Campbell, who teaches at St Dominic's, said: "We are on a mission to get our children eating healthily. This stall is great. It's getting more and more popular with parents, and teachers can use it to get children learning about the importance of fruit and vegetables in our lessons."

Recent analysis found that less than one in three people in Hackney were getting their five-a-day.

This is a really good idea for the school. Eating fresh fruit and vegetables helps you stay fit and strong

The pupils are also in favour. Eniola, nine, who is a health ambassador at the school, said: "This is a really good idea for the school. Eating fresh fruit and vegetables helps you stay fit and strong and have healthy bones."

The stall is run by East London Food Access (ELFA) Ltd who buy the food in bulk at New Spitalfields Market to sell on to parents in the school at prices that are often better value than supermarkets.

Deirdre Finan, headteacher of St Dominic's, said: "It helps us to support parents to get access to local fresh produce at good prices. There aren't enough fruit and vegetable shops near the school so we are filling that gap and making it easier."

The fruit and vegetables co-operative is part of Health Heroes, a borough-wide scheme to get children in Hackney eating healthily and getting more active. It is supported by the Council, schools and voluntary organisations.

The stall at the E9 school brings the total number of food co-operatives running in the borough to eight, all of them are open to the public as well as parents.

Be clear on the signs and symptoms of lung cancer

ALMOST a quarter of people in Hackney are smokers, which is one of the highest rates in London.

The Council is supporting the national 'Be Clear On Cancer' campaign, which aims to raise awareness of possible symptoms of lung cancer – especially a cough that lasts for three weeks or more – and encourage those with symptoms to see their doctor. Finding lung cancer early makes it more treatable.

Around 34,900 people are diagnosed with lung cancer in England every year, with the majority of cases occurring in those over the age of 50.

Lung cancer has one of the lowest survival rates of any cancer because over two-thirds of patients are diagnosed at a late stage.

For more info about the signs and symptoms of lung cancer, visit: nhs.uk/lungcancer

There are a number of free, stop smoking services available in Hackney. For more info, visit: smokefreecityandhackney.nhs.uk; e-mail: smokers-clinic@qmul.ac.uk; or call: 0800 169 1943.

Stop smoking services are also available at the majority of local pharmacies.

Have your say on integrated healthcare in Hackney

AN event is being held for residents to air their views about healthcare in Hackney.

The theme is 'patient-centred care' – with plans underway nationwide to join up NHS and Council services – organisers want to hear about people's experiences of healthcare in the borough.

There will be workshops on long-term conditions; patient discharge procedures; emergency and urgent care; outpatients and planned operations; end of life care; and joining up mental and physical health services.

NHS expert and broadcaster Roy Lilley is due to speak at the event, which is being organised by Healthwatch Hackney and City and Hackney Health and Social Care Forum.

It takes place on 1 April, from 10am to 1pm, at Hackney Empire 2, Wilton Way, E8, and will be followed by lunch. To book a place, call: 020 7923 1962; or visit: <http://bit.ly/1jDe9MG>

By Sally England

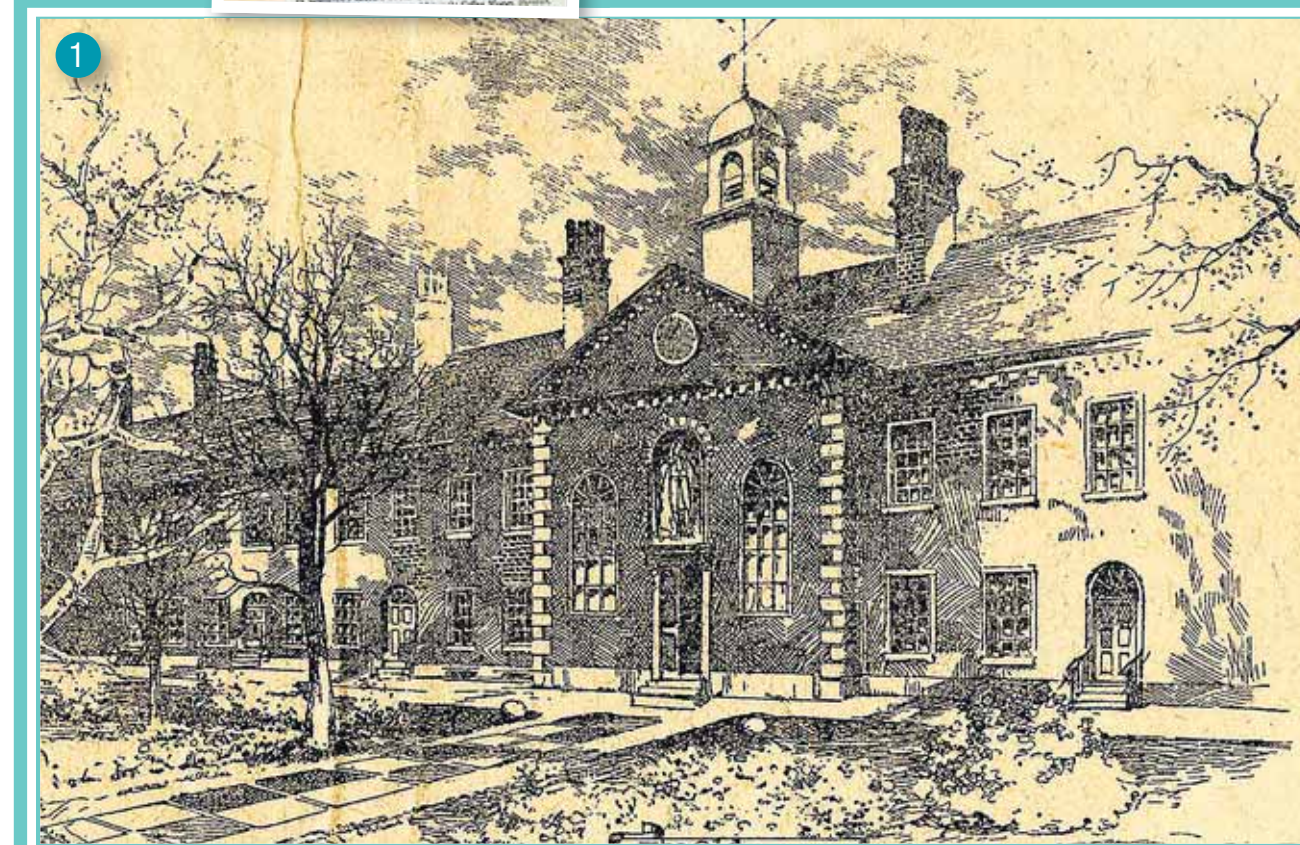

ONE hundred years ago, on 2 April 1914, the Geffrye Museum in Kingsland Road opened its doors to the public for the first time.

The building was formerly the almshouses of the Ironmongers' Company, founded by Sir Robert Geffrye in the terms of his will of 1703. The almoners moved out in the early 1900s, relocating to Eltham, but uncertainty about the fate of the almshouses provoked a struggle that lasted many years to save them from destruction.

It was inevitable the Ironmongers would want to relocate their pensioners, after what had once been a pleasant countryside location when the institution was first established, became a badly overcrowded area rife with poverty and crime.

Pressure also came from the Shoreditch Vestry in 1899, which wanted to use the site for a refuse destructor and electricity generating station.

Two recently founded preservation groups became concerned at the possibility of the almshouses being lost. The Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings (SPAB) had been formed in 1877 by Arts and Crafts movement architect Philip Webb and designer William Morris to fight for the repair rather than restoration of old buildings, which were often subjected to Victorian fantasy ideals of the past rather than preserved authentically.

100 years of Geffrye

The National Trust had only been formed in 1895, just four years before the Vestry began to put pressure upon the Ironmongers' Company, but already had enough influence to join with SPAB to extract promises from the Company that they would not sell up. An alternative site for the Vestry's project was found in Pitfield Street.

However, the Company soon changed its mind and in 1900 put the Kingsland Road site up for sale for redevelopment. A buyer was found in the Peabody Trust, the housing association and model dwellings company formed in 1862 by American banker George Peabody. The Trust planned to demolish the old almshouses and build 15 new tenement housing blocks in an area already dense with housing, agreeing to pay the Ironmongers £24,000.

The preservation groups were not the only opponents to the redevelopment of the site. Residents valued the tree-lined lawns in front of the almshouses as a rare piece of green open space in a borough with no parks.

Their voices were heard at a public enquiry held by the Charity Commission, whose permission was required in order for the sale to proceed.

The Commission took notice and permission for the sale was refused. But the Company appealed at the Court of Chancery where they were successful and so free to sell the site to the Peabody Trust.

It seemed that the old almshouses were finally doomed, but at the last moment the London County Council (LCC) came to the rescue, buying the site in 1910 in order to preserve the grounds as an open space for public recreation.

The gardens opened two years later, but at first the LCC had no plans as to what to do with the buildings. Once again, members of the Arts and Crafts movement came to the rescue. In 1911, they petitioned the LCC to develop a new museum displaying furniture of 'a fine standard of technical and artistic excellence', for which the Kingsland Road site, in the centre of what was then London's furniture industry quarter, would be the ideal location, where it could educate and inspire the local workforce.

At first, the Geffrye was stocked with examples of woodwork and ironwork displayed in traditional museum style. In 1935 however, historian Marjorie Quennell was appointed curator and developed instead the idea of a series of period rooms, as the old craft industries of Shoreditch moved away from the area. This was continued by her successor, Molly Harrison, who took over between 1946 and 1969, and who pioneered the modern role of education programmes in museums.

Today the refurbished period rooms remain the nucleus of the Geffrye Museum – which continues to explore the history of the home and interior design, and how that has changed over the centuries – in this, its own century year.

The Mayor and Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map opposite.

The Mayor

Jules Pipe

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of the Council who is elected annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Michael Desmond.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Waterhouse

www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. Sous-chef Lorren Joseph said: "Ackee is the national fruit of Jamaica and one of the main ingredients in the dish ackee and saltfish. The fruit is not native to the Caribbean island, and is rumoured to have come over on a ship from West Africa. Growing up as a child we ate ackee and salt fish for Sunday brunch before church. Although it can be eaten anytime, any day of the week."

Ackee and saltfish with fried dumplings

Serves 4

Preparation time
15 mins

Cooking time
20 mins

Ingredients

Ackee and saltfish

- Tinned ackee
- Mixed sweet peppers
- 1 onion
- Thyme (quarter bunch picked and finely chopped)
- Garlic
- Scotch bonnet 1-2
- Dried and salted cod.

Fried dumplings

- 500g plain flour
- 1½ teaspoons of salt
- 110g butter
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 125ml cold water
- 2 teaspoons of baking powder
- 250ml veg oil for frying.

Method

- Place the cod in water in a pan and bring to the boil. Drain off the water to get rid of excess salt, then add boiling water again and repeat. Do this about three times
- Finely dice the onion and add to the frying pan to sweat down. Add the garlic when the onions become translucent. De-glaze with boiling water. Add thyme, diced scotch bonnet and finely diced, sweet peppers till soft
- Add the cod, stirring gently to not break up the fish too much. Take off the heat, and add the drained ackee
- For the dumplings: in a bowl stir in flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Rub the butter until it forms pea sizes. Mix with water, 1 tablespoon at a time, until the mixture is wet enough to form into a ball. Knead briefly
- Heat the oil in a large frying pan on medium heat until hot. Break off pieces of dough and shape into patty. Fry until golden brown, about three minutes each side. Remove from pan and drain on kitchen towel before serving.

Have your say on the local account of adult social care

EVERY year the Council produces a report about adult social care to let residents know how the borough's services are performing.

The local account explains how much the authority spends on adult social care services, what the funding is used for, what the Council is doing to improve services, and future plans.

Work is set to begin on the local account for 2013-14, and the Council is inviting residents to tell them what the report should focus on.

To view last year's local account, or to contribute to this year's report, complete an online survey at: www.hackney.gov.uk/local-account by 31 March.

The Council is holding an engagement event for service users and carers on 26 March, at 10.30am to 1pm, in the Tomlinson Centre, Bloom 1 Suite, Queensbridge Road, E8 3ND.

To attend, e-mail: amanda.elliott@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 3980.

The Council is set to start work on Hackney's fourth local account

THE LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY (WOODBERRY DOWN PHASE 2) COMPULSORY PURCHASE ORDER 2012. THE TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING ACT 1990 – SECTION 226(1)(A) THE ACQUISITION OF LAND ACT 1981

- 1 Notice is hereby given that the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in exercise of his powers under the above Acts, on 24 January 2014 confirmed the London Borough Of Hackney (Woodberry Down Phase 2) Compulsory Purchase Order 2012 submitted by the London Borough of Hackney.

2 The order as confirmed provides for the purchase for the purposes of facilitating the carrying out of development, redevelopment and improvement of the land for the provision of new residential dwellings and a new health centre together with new civic space and open space,
- highway and public realm improvements and ancillary uses which are likely to contribute to achieving the promotion or improvement of the economic, social or environmental well-being of the area of the land described in the Schedule hereto.

3 A copy of the order as confirmed by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government and of the map referred to therein have been deposited at the Council's offices London Borough of Hackney of Town Hall, Mare Street, London E8 1EA and at the Woodberry Down Project Office, Woodberry Down, 440 Seven Sisters Road, London,
- N4 2RD and may be seen at all reasonable hours.

4 The order as confirmed becomes operative on the date on which this Notice is first published. A person aggrieved by the order may, by application to the High Court within 6 weeks from that date, challenge its validity under Section 23 of the Acquisition of Land Act 1981. The grounds for challenge can be that the authorisation granted by the order is not empowered to be granted or that there has been a failure to comply with any relevant statutory requirement relating to the order.

SCHEDULE
LAND COMPRISED IN THE ORDER AS CONFIRMED

LAND TO BE ACQUIRED:

1. Land including, residential buildings, flats and/or other dwellings and garages at Woodberry Down principally consisting of 8, 10 and 10a Woodberry Down, the former sites of Pewsham House, Peak House and Petherton House, 1-80 Nicholl House, 1-80 Needwood House, 1-23 (odd) Springpark Drive, 24-58 (even) Springpark Drove, 24-58 (even) Springpark Drive, 1-12 Towncourt Path, 1-14 Banstead Court, 1-24 Burtley Close, Lilliput Childrens Centre and one electricity substation together with the land and estate roads within the vicinity of those buildings, except those interests owned by the London Borough of Hackney.

PRELIMINARY NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MAKE GENERAL VESTING DECLARATION
STATEMENT OF EFFECT OF PARTS II AND III OF THE COMPULSORY PURCHASE (VESTING DECLARATIONS) ACT 1981
THE LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY (WOODBERRY DOWN PHASE 2) COMPULSORY PURCHASE ORDER 2012

PART 1
Power to make general vesting declaration

- 1 The London Borough of Hackney (hereinafter called "the Council") may acquire any of the land described in the Schedule above by making a general vesting declaration under section 4 of the Compulsory Purchase (Vesting Declarations) Act 1981. This has the effect, subject to paragraph 4 below, of vesting the land in the Council at the end of the period mentioned in paragraph 2 below. A declaration may not be made before the end of a period of two months from the first publication of a notice which includes this statement except with the consent in writing of every occupier of the land affected.

Notices concerning general vesting declaration

- 2 As soon as may be after the Council make a general vesting declaration, they must serve notice of it on every occupier of any of the land specified in the declaration (except land where there is one of the tenancies described in paragraph 3) and on every person who gives them information relating to the land in pursuance of the invitation contained in any notice. When the service of notices of the general vesting declaration is completed, a further period begins to run. This period, which must not be less than 28 days, will be specified in the declaration. On the first day after the end of this period ("the vesting date") the land described in the declaration will, subject to what is said in paragraph 4, vest in the Council together with the right to enter on the land and take possession of it. Every person on whom the Council could have served a notice to treat in respect of his interest in the land (other than a tenant under one of the tenancies described in paragraph 3) will be entitled to claim compensation for the acquisition of his interest in the land, with interest on the compensation from the vesting date.

Modifications with respect to certain tenancies

- 3 In the case of certain tenancies, the position stated above is subject to modifications. The modifications apply where the tenancy is either a "minor tenancy" i.e. a tenancy for a year or a yearly tenancy or a lesser interest, or "a long tenancy which is about to expire". The latter expression means a tenancy granted for an interest greater than a minor tenancy but having on the vesting date a period still to run which is not more than the period specified in the declaration for this purpose (which must not be more than a year). In calculating how long a tenancy has still to run, where an option to renew or to terminate it is available to either party, it shall be assumed that the landlord will take every opportunity open to him to terminate the tenancy while the tenant will use every opportunity to retain or renew his interest.
- 4 The modifications are that the Council may not exercise the right of entry referred to in paragraph 2 in respect of land subject to a tenancy described in paragraph 3 unless they first serve a notice to treat in respect of the tenancy and then serve every occupier of the land with a notice of their intention to enter and take possession after the period (not less than 14 days from the service of the notice) specified in the notice. The right of entry will be exercisable at the end of that period. The vesting of the land will be subject to the tenancy until the end of that period or until the tenancy comes to an end, whichever happens first.

Patricia Narebor, Head of Commercial
For and on behalf of the Corporate Director of Legal, HR and Regulatory Services London Borough of Hackney, Town Hall, Mare Street, London E8 1EA
Dated 20 March 2014

Invitation to Give Information

Every person who, if a general vesting declaration were made in respect of all of the land comprised in the Order (other than land in respect of which notice to treat has been given), would be entitled to compensation in respect of any such land, is invited to give information to the Council by making the declaration in the prescribed form with respect to his name and address and the land in question.

The relevant prescribed form is set out below.

PART 2(a)

Form for Giving Information

THE LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY

TRAFFIC MANAGEMENT ORDER

THE HACKNEY (PRESCRIBED ROUTES AND 20 MPH SPEED LIMIT)

(AMENDMENT NO.) ORDER 201 20 NO*

1. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council of the London Borough of Hackney proposes to make the above-mentioned Orders under the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 as amended.
2. The general effect of this Order will be to introduce a prohibition of driving with an exemption for pedal cycles in Queen Elizabeth Walk from the junction with Lordship Terrace to the entrance to Beech House.
3. Plans of the proposed measures can be inspected during normal office hours on Mondays to Fridays inclusive until a period of 21 days from the date, on which this notice is published, in the reception area, London Borough of Hackney, Keltan House, 89-115 Mare Street, London, E8 4RU. Further information may be obtained by contacting Helpdesk on 020 8356 2897.
4. Any objections or other representations about the proposed Order should be sent in writing to the Assistant Director (Public Realm) at the address specified in paragraph 3 above until the expiration of a period of 21 days from the date on which this Notice is published. All objections must specify the grounds on which they are made.

LONDON BOROUGH OF HACKNEY

THE HACKNEY (PARKING PLACES) (CYCLE PARKING) (EXPERIMENTAL) ORDER 2014 TT1003

1. NOTICE is hereby given that on 21st March 2014, the London Borough of Hackney made an Experimental Traffic Order under the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 ("the Act") and all other enabling powers.
2. The effect of the Experimental Traffic Order, which comes into operation on 31st March 2014, will
- a) Remove existing permit holder bay and replace with a secure cycle hanger

- i) Princess May Road – outside 49
- ii) Dynevor Road – outside No 49
- iii) Beatty Road – outside No 22
